

Eric

November 1, 1999

Eric loves sports; football is his favorite, especially the Pittsburgh Steelers. Eric enjoys playing outside, riding his bike, listening to his MP3 player, and playing video games. He is a very intelligent young man and does well in school, with Math being his least favorite and most difficult for him.

Eric wants to be a “normal” kid and have the freedom to hang out with his friends, get his driver’s license and attend school functions. Due to the number of placement moves and numerous adoption failures, Eric lacks the trust of adults and hesitant to open up to others. This has caused him to make some poor choices and restrict those abilities. Eric needs a family who can be patient with him through the transition and show him how to trust again.
